ASK THE AGENT FOR

TO SEA ON UPTURNED BOAT.

Karr Was Upset From Skiff and Companions Were Unable to Help Him. Hoquiam, Nov. 10 .- W. H. Karr, a prominent young man of this city, probably drifted to sea on an overturned boat. He had taken Dr. Wells lower bay duck hunting. About 11 o'clock he took a small skiff to bring in a goose. The boat upset and he drifted seaward past his companions, who were unable to help

While the tide was high his companions were standing in water waist deep nearly four hours before they could reach Karr's launch, which lay at anchor. Owing to a very strong tide and wind, they consumed much time in reaching here. Three steamers with searching parties have gone to the rescue, though little hope is entertained. Karr was to have been married to Miss Knapp, of South Aberdeen.

JAP SOLDIERS MEAT EATERS.

Common Statement Regarding Japanese Soldiers' Rations Disputed.

The Jap is able to digest rice and imilar foods much better than a white man because he possesses an intestine one-fifth longer. Such, at all events, s the statement of Dr. B. Scheube of the Kioto Medical school, says the Philadelphia Post.

It is a fact, however, that the fighting men of Japan are meat eaters, though the population of the country at large is vegetarian mainly. Even in time of peace beef is supplied to the soldiers; that is one reason why foreigners find it convenient to reside and Mr. Rockwell in his launch to the in the neighborhod of garrison towns. because the butcher is handy. At the same time, the people of Nippon can under no circumstances be persuaded to touch mutton, which they look upon

The main dependence of the Japanese troops in the field is rice, compressed into balls about the size of one's fists, for the sake of making it more portable, the instrument used for the purpose somewhat resembling a lemon squeezer. Before being converted into this shape the rice is cooked, so that, in case of emergency, it may be eaten without further operation. But ordinarily the balls are either cut in slices or roasted, or else dropped whole into the pot, when in the process of boiling, they expand

SEA LEVEL CHANGING.

Showing From Sunken Docks of the Old Roman Period. The phenomenon of the changes in the level of the sea is one which is well shown in the case of the Mediterranean. M. Ph. Negris, in a recent brochure presented to the academy of sciences, furnishes us interesting information on this point, it being apparent that the sea has greatly increased in depth as compared to ancient times. Formerly a bridge 3000 feet long united Leucade to the continent. Today it is submerged, but the foundations of the work were discovered, 11 feet beneath the surface. It may, therefore, be concluded that since the construction of the bride the sea has arisen at this point over nine feet. At Itea, in the bay of Amphissa there has been observed a mole that is also over nine feet beneath the surface. At Rhence there has been found a completely submerged dock, evidently of Roman construction, the depth of the sea above the dock at places being fully nine feet. From all of these facts one many conclude that there has taken place an important increase in the depth of the sea since the Roman period, the Mediterranean having risen at least nine feet oin about 2000 years. -New York Tribune,
